ABSTRACT
This writing aims to find out how the community responds to programs carried out by the government to develop society in order to reduce the burden on the lives of the lower middle class, namely in the context of providing BPNT (Non-Cash Food Assistance). The government of North Labuhanbatu Regency, Aek Natas District, especially the community in Terang Bulan Village, has responded very well to what the government has done in developing its human resources. The community is greatly helped by the BPNT program, with this program they are helped in providing basic daily food necessities for life. The community hopes that the BPNT government program can run forever, especially during a pandemic like this, where basic goods are increasing, but income is not enough.

Keywords: development, society, BPNT

A. PRELIMINARY

Non-Cash Food Assistance, abbreviated as BPNT, is social food assistance in the form of non-cash or basic food cards, which the government provides to underprivileged communities every month. This assistance is distributed through an electronic account mechanism so that basic food cards can only be used to buy food at stalls that collaborate with the bank. BPNT or basic food cards are planned to be disbursed again in April 2022, using a lump sum distribution mechanism for the next three months. With details of monthly social assistance proceeds of IDR 200 thousand, the recipient will receive a nominal social assistance amount of IDR 600 thousand at once. Quoting Bisnis.com, BPNT will be given to 18.8 million families whose names are listed in the Integrated Social Welfare Data (DTKS) portal. In this case, the government disbursed funds amounting to Rp. 45.12 trillion for BPNT needs. This assistance cannot be taken in cash and if the assistance is not spent within that month, the value of the assistance remains stored and accumulated. KPM can use the e-voucher to buy rice and other food ingredients such as eggs, according to the quantity and quality desired at the e-warung.

The Ministry of Social Affairs together with Perum Bulog is collaborating on a non-cash food assistance program that started in 2017. This is a transformation of the previous program, namely the prosperous rice subsidy
This program is a transformation of the Raskin program which has been implemented since 2002. Changes to this program were carried out as an effort by the government to continue to improve the implementation mechanism for distributing food aid to poor families. Based on the results of evaluations carried out, including recommendations from the World Bank, it is considered less successful in fulfilling the 6T principles, namely right target, right quantity, right price, right time, right quality, and proper administration.

B. RESEARCH METHOD

The method used was direct interviews with people who received the BPNT (Non-Cash Food Assistance) program by several people who received it using direct questions and answers while meeting face-to-face with the community.
